This book offers a new and innovative science-based first response framework that addresses the burden of scorpion stings in Southern Africa across all levels of society. It answers two very important questions:

- How can you reduce the chance of being stung by a scorpion?
- If a sting does occur, how can you ensure the best possible outcome for stings in humans and animals?

This book will be of particular value to anyone working or living in areas where scorpions abound and is of particular value to medical professionals, veterinarians, field guides, hikers, hunters and anyone who enjoys the great outdoors.

Jonathan is Southern Africa's leading authority on spider bite and scorpion sting first response. He is a best selling author, international speaker and award-winning conservationist. He consults for poison information helplines, medical organisations and academic institutions, and speaks and is a panel member at medical conferences and is a member of the National Snakebite Advisory Group. His work has inspired a generation, and has shaped our understanding of scorpions and scorpion stings across Southern Africa.
